

Drivalia Renews Its Partnership with Olimpia Milano, Italian Basketball Champions

- The CA Auto Bank Group's mobility and rental company makes a fleet of electric cars available to players.
- Commitment, innovation, and sustainability are the values that Drivalia and Olimpia Milano share in their paths to growth and success.

Turin/Milan, November 11, 2025

After confirming its role as Official Mobility Partner of Pallacanestro Olimpia Milano for the third consecutive year, Drivalia has strengthened its partnership with one of Europe's most prestigious basketball teams by providing players with a fleet of electric vehicles.

In addition, Drivalia will supply the team's management with a fleet of electric cars, reinforcing its commitment to increasingly sustainable mobility.

Drivalia was also the match sponsor for the game on November 9, when Olimpia Milano faced Nutribullet Treviso Basket at the Forum in Assago, a special occasion to celebrate the partnership and further engage with fans.

This collaboration also offers an ideal opportunity to involve CA Auto Bank Group employees through dedicated initiatives and engagement activities inspired by the shared values of sport and sustainability.

2026 will be a landmark year for Olimpia Milano, which will celebrate its 90th anniversary, a milestone that underscores the history and tradition of one of Europe's most successful clubs

Pallacanestro Olimpia Milano

Pallacanestro Olimpia Milano, founded in 1936, is Italy's most successful basketball club, boasting 31 league titles, nine Italian Cups, five Italian Super Cups, three European titles, three Cup Winners' Cups, two Korac Cups, and one Intercontinental Cup. In 1987, the club played its first official game in the United States against an NBA team, and in 2015, it participated in the first official game in America between two EuroLeague teams. The club is represented in the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield by five members, with six more in the FIBA Hall of Fame. Olimpia Milano itself is part of the Italian Hall of Fame and the Italian-American Hall of Fame in Chicago. Forty-three legends are included in the club's Hall of Fame, and four jersey numbers (8, 11, 18, 36) have been retired to honor five legendary figures: Mike D'Antoni, Dino Meneghin, Sandro Gamba, Arthur Kenney, and Dan Peterson.

Olimpia Milano plays its home games at the Forum in Assago, the largest arena in Italian Serie A, and since 2014 has consistently recorded the league's highest attendance, averaging 10,000 spectators per game. The club is socially active, with support programs that have earned it four European awards. Since 2008, it has run the Armani Junior Program, an educational and technical initiative involving over 100 clubs nationwide. Its youth sector is among the most prestigious in Europe, having won 25 national titles

Olimpia Milano has been owned by Giorgio Armani since 2008.
